Winds of change alter

the face of youth,

A changing world of chaos and conflict challenges youth in 1967. As revolutionary ideas crumble the walls of established thinking and living, youth everywhere struggle for personal identity-flitting from conformity to individuality. We are reacting to change-protesting, proclaiming, working to build a better tomorrow out of the tumbled heap of today. For some, the immediate threat of a post-high school career in Vietnam shatters all personal security. Others face the increasingly competitive worlds of work and college. Bombarded by pressures, youth is confused, frightened, searching, escaping-a universal mood reflected in the students of H.H.S. . . . a student isolated from the crowd, trying to sort out minutae from what is important . . . trying to identify himself as an individual yet establish himself as part of a group ... attempting to unravel the complexities of atomic-speeded age . . . finding self-expression . . . the face of youth ... 1496 students of Hickory High School . . . touched by the winds, changed and changing.

to tomorrow's world ...

1966-67 . . . a year of academic revolution at Hickory High School. Under the guidance of new principal Mr. Gene Miller, teachers and students tackled the tremendous responsibilities of education in an electrifyingly fastpaced era. The merger of Ridgeview High with Claremont Central formed the largest student body and faculty in the history of H.H.S. Through the use of visual aids, the newly-installed reading lab aided slow readers and encouraged speed reading and comprehension. Math teachers and students struggled with the deceptively simple concepts of modern mathematics. A program of required physical education for sophomores emphasized the growing importance of fitness. Looking ahead toward increased demand for modern facilities, architects and administrators began planning for the construction of a new high school-the logical union of tomorrow's buildings with tomorrow's education . . . academic progress in the pursuit of educational excellence

widening opportunities

for the individual ...

Beneath the structural alterations and renovations in curriculum lies a less obvious yet more complex change-the gradual metamorphosis of Hickory High School. Today H H S. has ceased to function solely as an institution of academic advancement. Through its expanding organizations and diversified programs, H.H.S. now reaches into countless facets of its students' lives, offering opportunities for the expression and development of individual talents. School-sponsored clubs foster the exploration of careers by offering experience in a wide range of fields-journalism, music, engineering, art. Commercial instructors have introduced the Cooperative Office Occupations Program to enable students to secure parttime jobs and gain further knowledge of business operations. Within the framework of curriculum, each individual has the opportunity to follow his own inclinations, to discover for himself

Each facet of change touches youth and his its effect. Yet nothing fully penetrates or destroys the interrible constant youth remains locked in, dwelling in a separate continent located in time halfway between culd rood and adulthood. Rapid and sweeping changes in this era have amplified and magnified youth's capacity for life, intensified their resiliency of spirit—qualities evident in the youth that make up Hickory High School.

Dedication

Dedicatee is a dynamo of energy and enthusiasm for teaching who incorporates a zest for living into the daily instruction of biology students. A bulging briefcase, her constant companion, reveals her interest in school affairs and her ever-present quest for knowledge. Overflowing with unique specimens and unusual student projects, her room mirrors her remarkable personality and deep involvement in her chosen field of science. During her twenty years of teaching at Hickory High, Dedicatee has infused in her students a part of her own awareness and understanding of the mysteries and wonders of nature. For devoted years of service and self, we the members of the LOG staff, dedicate the 1967 Hickory LOG to you, Miss Margie Barringer

ENGLISH

English Department ranks were strengthened in 1967 by the hiring of four new teachers, while instruction was extended to include a practical course for students not planning to go to college. This new course, which stressed vocabulary and spelling, began with a diagnostic test. In other courses teachers emphasized literature and writing essentials in addition to grammar. A new reading lab under the direction of Mr. Everette Propost intensified instruction in speed and comprehension. Equipped with tape recorders, televisions, and Craig Electronic Readers, the lab provided live coaching. English teachers attended a four-teen-session course in modern linguistics in preparation for teaching a similar course next year

FOREIGN LANGUAGE

Living in an age of supersonic speed and mass communications, one becomes increasingly aware of people the world over—their problems, achievements, ideas, and opinions. The H.H.S. Foreign Language Department, offering French, Spanish, and Latin, stressed the growing need for international communication. Thus, a foreign language became more alive. Teachers emphasized not only the mechanics of the language, but also the history and culture of the people. Films, tapes, and photographs, correlated with new books, added interest to French and Spanish classes. Due to the shortage of Latin teachers, the administration investigated the use of a programmed Latin course. Language lab drills increased fluency, bettered pronunciation, and supplemented classroom work.

SOCIAL STUDIES

Concerned with troubled areas around the world, students became more involved in social studies. Whether it was learning about Neanderthal man or the statistical income of an American citizen, the Social Studies Department covered all areas extensively. Educational films and colorful maps brightened lectures. A requirement for graduation, United States history was organized on the basis of Presidents and their administrations. Through world history, geography, and economics and sociology, pupils learned of countries and their peoples, topography and natural resources, and the desires of the individual Social studies courses gave Hickory High students a feeling of oneness with the rest of the world

COMMERCIAL

"Education about business" was the by-word of the Commercial Department which instructed students for college as well as for vocations after high school. To carry out this dual purpose, commercial teachers initiated the Cooperative Office Occupations Program—one of eighty-five in the state. The Commercial Department enlarged this year with new typewriters and mimeograph machines and an additional teacher. Through Typing I and II Shorthand I and II, and Bookkeeping I, commercial students developed background experience for business. Instructing future secretaries and businessmen, teachers stressed speed and accuracy. Commercial courses provided the essentials for those students interested in advancing themselves into the world of business opportunities

Modern Math Tests Comprehension of Students

MATHEMATICS

Fascinating ideas underlying modern mathematical concepts challenged H.H.S. math teachers as well as students. The introduction of new principles of reasoning required a completely new set of textbooks. With the background of geometry, Algebra I, and Algebra II, students were prepared for the advanced courses offered. Algebra III and Advanced Math I and II were extended to prepare college-bound seniors for increasingly difficult college freshman math courses. To further students' understanding, teachers spent many summer hours studying and planning new material. Above all, modern math emphasized the comprehension of the "why" and "how" of every question asked and each problem solved

I.C.T., D.E. AND INDUSTRIAL ARTS

Three programs initiated non-college-bound students into Hickory's business and industrial life. Approximately 250 students enrolled in the distributive education and industrial cooperative training programs attended morning classes and worked, under school supervision, at approved jobs from three to five hours a day. In industrial arts classes, 125 pupils developed mechanical drawing and woodworking skills. Accomplished through supervised study and work in I.C.T. and D.E., students acquired self-confidence and were able, following graduation, to make a successful transition into some facet of the community's business or industry

Talent Produces Superior Ratings and Ribbons

A SUPERIOR RATING received in the March 10 competition in Charlotte rewarded chorus members for months of practice

FINE ARTS

Skillful fingers and inventive minds combined to produce myriad types of art. Although the addition of a Phys. Ed. class bisected Mr. Rankin's art room, his students transformed the remaining walls into a left-bank studio with murals and frescos of Paris. By perfecting their talent students were able to capture blue ribbons in the City-Wide Art Contest. Mr. and Mrs. Michael Keziah and Mr. Harold Turbviill arrived to head the music department. Under the direction of Mr. E. E Smith and Miss Ann Royster, the 1966 Spring Contest resulted in Superior ratings for both band and chorus. The orchestra presented concerts and gained city-wide recognition. This year a coat of arms contest sponsored by LOG, Art Club, and Student Council was held for H.H.S 'ers with prizes of twenty-five, fifteen, and ten dollars awarded

HOMEMAKING AND PHYSICAL EDUCATION

Aided by up-to-date filmstrips and textbooks, the home economics department concentrated on teaching girls domestic skills and home management. Mrs. Jewel Church and new teacher, Mrs. Janet Thompson, initiated a program of team teaching in which they presented a special unit on housing and interior decorating to their combined classes

Following a Southern Association recommendation, the administration for the first time required each sophomore to take physical education. Mrs. Willie Patterson and Coach Frank Barger correlated exercises and sports which encouraged students to develop enjoyment in athletics and sportsmanlike attitudes for future recreation. #### SCIENCE

Biology-chemistry-physics, these are the educational steps in Hickory High's science ladder. Science students delved deep into the anatomy of an earthworm, advanced further into the chemical make-up of matter, and hopefully reached into the study of the physical properties. Confronted with recently written texts. HHS, students were introduced to new scientific theories. Aided by upto-date equipment, "amateur" scientists learned how to tackle the scientific concepts concerned in new theories Expanded to seven members, the department instructors gave the students the benefit of advanced study. This year bio-chemistry, a new phase of science, was introduced in the biology course. The Hickory High Science Department opened an inviting door to students

LUNCHROOM AND MAINTENANCE

Nine hundred to twelve hundred hungry students confronted the fourteen lunchroom staff members each day Federal government donations of flour, rice, corn meal, and dry milk, plus reimburstments of five cents per student plate, aided in feeding the study body. To keep pace with rising costs, student meal prices rose from thirty to thirty-five cents at mid-term. Due to the additional number of students, the lunch period was again divided into three groups, each consisting of forty minutes.

The eleven members of the maintenance crew kept the campus grounds attractive and buildings cleaned. School hours were spent moving the lawn, burning trash, sweeping, and dusting. Due to the shortage of janitorial help off-duty firemen augmented the work staff at night.

SUMMER SCHOOL & DRIVERS' TRAINING

Humidity rose and days grew longer as the school year ground to a close. For some students this meant lazy days or summer jobs, but for 226 others—summer school. Whether making up a course or easing next year's load, students packed nine months of work into six weeks. From June 13 to July 29, they were on the go from eight a.m. to one p.m.

Along with biology and math, Driver's Training courses were offered. Because driver's training is a legal pre-requisite for licencing sixteen to eighteen year olds, classes were jammed throughout the year. With class work and behind the wheel training, students learned safe driving.

Recognition Awarded to Accomplished Students

HONORS AND AWARDS

Scholastic achievement, excellence in sports, exemplary citizenship—these are the criteria for awarding honors. Although H H S. abounds with outstanding students, many received little or no recognition. For these, the self-satisfaction of a job well done was the only reward. Pride in their alma mater along with perseverance, honorable ability, and leadership prompted them to contribute to the never-ending legacy of H.H.S. superiority. To a few who have surpassed the standard of excellence, recognition was given. A certificate, a sports letter, a scholarship, a trophy—these were but symbols. Their significance was far deeper: they represented an unselfish contribution of time and self. We, the students of H.H.S., salute these—the honored today, the leaders tomorrow.

Men behind the scenes, Student Council members acted as co-ordinators for H.H.S. Before school began they compiled pictures and ads for football programs and secured registration day guides. Engineered by the Council, the Homecoming Parade activated student ingenuity and drew crowds. Careful planning of the Homecoming ceremony resulted in a smoothly executed halftime. Besides being the brains behind such activities, members performed manual labor as they lined off the Grove parking lot, postitioned tables for College Day representatives, and prepared post-game snacks for football players. They presented the Talent Show and conducted elections and orientation. Despite its small size, the Student Council proved to be H.H.S.'s most far-reaching organization.

HOMI ROOM REPRESINTATIVES

Serving as the lower house of the student government, homeroom representatives relayed complaints and suggestions to the Student Council. By distributing maroon and gold shakers made by mothers of the football players, they boosted school spirit for the Western North Carolina High School play-off Through the selection of Students of the Month, the organization honored individuals on the basis of academic and social contributions. Members cultivated a working club program by helping establish constitutions for new clubs and evaluating old ones. Inter-Club mediated conflicts between organizations, assigned club meeting dates, and directed the combined efforts of organizations. During Youth Appreciation Week, the Optimist Club honored members at a luncheon held at the Embers Restaurant where District Court Judge Joe Evans praised them for their respect of law and order. By dealing with clubs' individual needs and taking a non-partisan view in examining them, Inter-Club developed a strong extracurricular program

Sparking interest in all activities of the Parent-Teacher Association, P.T.A. Representatives worked to better relationships at H.H.S. They performed a vital service during open house by guiding bewildered parents through a seeming maze of halfs. Stationed throughout the school at information posts, they directed parents who were acquainting themselves with their children's schedules. Private conferences with teachers on individual student's standing, knowledge of the academic curriculum at H.H.S., and parent-teacher understanding resulted from open house for parents. Comprised of one student elected from each homeroom, the representatives collected P.T.A. dues in their respective rooms and served as a connecting link between parents, teachers, and students

Gold and green armbands distinguished the Hall Monitors this year as they kept an eye on hall activities. Briefings at afternoon meetings informed monitors of new traffic problems and responsibilities. Stationed in halls, on fire escapes, and on stairwells, they directed traffic to the right, broke up traffic blocks, and stopped unnecessary running, confusion, and accidents. Hall Monitors reported profanity, destruction of school property, and other misdemeanors. Violation of any rule resulted in punishment in detention hall. Through the efforts of this group, the H.H.S. student body changed classes more quickly and with greater safety.

National Honor Society

Replacing the Beta Club this year as Hickory High's academic organization, the National Honor Society recognized scholastic achievement and provided Junior Marshals for the baccalaureate service and graduation ceremonies. With a new charter came more stringent requirements for membership in the organization. Receiving members in their junior or senior year, the society informed inductees of their acceptance by letter. All those who joined the National Honor Society as juniors served as Junior Marshals in the May graduation exercises. Don Moir and Doris Thomason were elected as Chief Marshals, leading the procession of seniors and shouldering the extra responsibility of making Hickory High's first outdoor graduation ceremony function smoothly

TWIG

From interviewing and selling ads to make-up and fold, the TWIG Staff completed an entire publishing cycle bi-weekly. Reporters and editors kept H.H.S'ers well-informed as they searched out news, wrote and proofread copy, took pictures, and set copy with the Vari-typer. Under the direction of a new adviser, Mrs. Mary Ellen Yount, business members published, distributed, and financed the paper. A showcase of advertising, the TWIG publicized Hickory businesses. For the first time, students could purchase single issues as well as subscriptions Eight-page editions for Homecoming, Christmas, Valentine's Day, and April Fool's Day contained special features, art work, and extra photography. At the C.S.P.A. Convention in March, the TWIG won First Place

Full color and duotone pictures, mondrian layouts, renovated advertising section, different publisher—the format of the '66-'67 LOG emphasized its theme, "Winds of Change." Endeavoring to meet deadlines, the editorial staff worked late hours writing copy, cropping and captioning pictures, and proofreading. The sale of ads, class pictures, and LOGS, plus the layout of the entire advertisement section, constituted vital roles of business staff members. Due to an increase in the number of pictures and necessity for shots of good quality, photographers became more important to both staffs. Last year's LOG retained the award-winning status achieved by previous editions with a First Place at S.I.P.A., an All-American at N.S.P.A., and Medalist at C.S.P.A. in New York City

LEAVES Packets Promote Sales and Interest

LEAVES

By combining the Student Directory, literary magazine, and LOG cover into a "LEAVES packet," the LEAVES Staff promoted interest and boosted sales. At the close of their selling campaign, a prize drawing from purchasers' names awarded nine theater passes and a transistor radio. To publicize the LEAVES outside Hickory High, staff members took copies to junior high schools and doctors' offices. With increased enrollment, compiling the Student Directory entailed extra hours of typing lists of names and selling ads. A melange of student creativity, the LEAVES included short stories, essays, and poetry, illustrated with staff art work and financed by local businesses. Providing incentive for student writing, the LEAVES Staff recognized literary achievement at H.H.S.

Staff Reschedules Program and Alters Format

RADIO

Each week Radio Staff members manned WIRC D.J. seats and microphones for a half hour of "Hickory High Speaks." The group increased popularity by revising the format of the program and changing its time to 4:30 P.M on Sunday. Popular music along with news, editorials, sports, features, and a weekly contest for a five dollar prize won teenage fans. The staff aided faculty and students by making announcements each morning and afternoon. Two months' preparation of selling ads and writing copy preceded Radio Day. As WIRC D.J.'s, news reporters, and weather forecasters, staff members gained additional experience in broadcasting. Not only has the Radio Staff provided entertainment, but it has instilled in many of its members a desire for careers in radio

Beginning in early fall, they drilled to perfect selections for the city-wide Christmas program. A small ensemble and selected soloists competed in a contest at Davidson College in late January. Members traveled to Greensboro in the spring for the State Choral Festival and soon afterwards presented a concert to culminate their year of work. Many planned to further their study of music at workshops held at Chapel Hill and Mars Hill during the summer.

Sousa marches filled the air as the marching band drilled for performances at football halftimes. Under the leadership of new director Michael Keziah, the eighty-tive-piece band supplemented daily classes with seven A M practices during the football season. Mr Keziah also introduced a point system in which each band student determined his own grade. With the chorus, band members created the prize-winning Homecoming float themed—"Victory Sweet as a Rose." At rallies and bonfires the pep band sparked spirit with "Hail to the Varsity" and "Dixie." After football season, the ninety-six member concert band rehearsed for the Christmas concert and the state-wide spring contest. A concert in May honored senior members by lauding their achievements.

Whirling skirts, enormous sombreros, and clicking castanets set the mood of the Spanish Club's yearly fling—the Spring Fiesta. Attired in Spanish dress, each member contributed tocos, enchiladas, or other Latin American foods and joined in dancing and singing to music typical of Central and South America. Although the Fiesta climaxed the year for most members, two recipients of the organization's scholarships anticipated three weeks of study at the University of Mexico in Mexico City. A chocolate bar sale, the chief activity of the Spanish Club, financed these grants. With their new advisers, Mrs. Juanita Clark and Mrs. Scottie Sue Brittain, and their varied projects, Spanish Club began to fulfill its goal of furthering Spanish interest and knowledge at H.H.S.

Comical attires and antics distinguished Latin Club initiates from other students during the club's Slave Week. A banquet at which second-year students were served and entertained by their purchased slaves highlighted this week. With the theme of "Veni, Vidi, Vici," a float designed and decorated by the club captured second place in the re-established Homecoming Parade On a visit to Belmont Abbey in December, members attended a High Mass, which was partly in Latin, and toured the cathedral. Those attending the N.C. Junior Classical League Convention held in Murch at Chaper Hill competed in contests involving Roman history, word derivation and mythology. F.H.A.

Homemaking students shared practical experiences in the field of home economics by participating in Future Homemakers of America. Meeting once a month, the group enjoyed programs ranging from discussions on family relations to suggestions for improvement of personal appearance. With the theme "Coming of Age," the District Rally held at Kannapolis commemorated the twenty-first birthday of FHA. Girls attending from Hickory High served as judges in the identification tag contest. As Christmas vacation approached, members prepared for an open house and tea given for the parents of homemaking students. Here they displayed clothes made during first semester and original Christmas decorations. In the spring girls traveled to Raleigh for a state convention.

Adding machines, grade books, and classrooms full of students provided tasks for F.T.A. members as they assisted H.H.'s a overworked teachers. By averaging grades filing, and occasionally taking charge of classes, they gained insight from the teacher's point of view. All members were assigned to a teacher whom they helped during their study halls. Under the sponsorship of their new adviser, Mrs. Loretta Aldridge, they gave a tea for the faculty during National Education Week. Panel discussions by faculty members and a lecture by Lorene Painter, teaching superviser at Lenoir Rhyne College, acquainted members with the responsibilities of teaching. Through the efforts of the F.T.A., future teachers were prepared to face the problems and challenges of their profession.

Hickory High's chapter of the Vocational Industrial Clubs of America prepared students for vocational leadership and taught them a respect for work. Besides working regular hours every week, students aided the community with projects such as collecting contributions for the Heart Fund and promoting Crime Prevention Week. This year's club boasted the elected treasurer of the regional convention. Maintaining award-winning tradition, the V.I.C.A.-er's captured first place in the scrapbook contest at the state convention held in Raleigh; and a blue ribbon in domestic affairs at the district convention brought further success to this organization. One of Hickory High's largest clubs with seventy-one members, the Future Business Leaders of America faced the responsibility of maintaining the award-winning status achieved by last year's club. In 1966 at New Orleans, the Hickory High group won a Gold Seal Award, one of nine given in the nation. To qualify for membership in the F.B.L.A., a student must have earned credit in a business course. Businessmen, secretaries, and professional leaders spoke at monthly meetings and participated with students in panel discussions. Serving as secretarial aides, members assisted teachers with filing, typing, and recording of grades. Several outstanding members, chosen on the basis of club participation, attended state and national conventions held in Durham, North Carolina, and San Francisco, California

Newly affiliated as a school activity and having a faculty adviser for the first time, the all-male Kev Club added school activities to civic projects. Before the football season, members sold H.H.S. penants during lunch and distributed Tornado suckers to homeroom classes. The principal appointed the boys to clear the halls during fire drills. Ushering at the Community Theater, members performed a year-long service for the city of Hickory. In February they joined civic clubs in soliciting contributions for the Heart Fund. As a favor to the management of the Hickory Foundation Center, several painted the new Teen Center. Local businessmen and civic leaders spoke at regular meetings. #### ART

With "A Pirate's Cove" and "A Festival of Hearts" as themes, the Art Club enhanced the Junior-Senior Prom and Quill and Scroll Beauty Contest. By combining imagination, designing, and decorating they created original backdrops for the Talent Show. Art Club, LOG Staff, and Student Council sponsored a school coat of arms contest. Prizes of twenty-five, ten, and five dollars rewarded best emblems which will be used on class rings, diplomas, and school documents. Traveling to the Raleigh Museum of Art, members studied techniques and styles of famous artists in preparation for entering original works of art in the city art contest. Credit in Art I or II qualified students for membership in the Art Club which followed the publication staffs' grade requirements.

DEBATING

Probing into the controversial topic of United States foreign policy, the Debating Society augmented their knowledge and understanding of their country's position in world affairs. Under a new rule for membership, sophomores joined junior and senior debaters in the time-consuming research of current literature for facts to support arguments and rebuttals. A candy sale in the fail financed the purchase of up-to-date manuals concerning effective debating. At regular meetings, members disputed the pros and cons of U.S. military and economic foreign aid. To culminate the year's endeavors, they hosted a round robin debate in the school library where they competed with teams from surrounding schools for the honor of attending the state contest at Wake Forest College.

CHESS

Whether using kings of the finest ivory or of the cheapest plastic, Chess Club members became engrossed in the game of strategy and skill. Bi-weekly meetings served a dual purpose by teaching this game to new members and providing practice for others. Hickory area players competed in the Round Robin Tournament. Members from Hickory High also matched wits with college level teams at Appalachian State Teachers College. This year the Hickory High and Wilkes Central groups joined in hosting tournaments for opposing teams. With the largest and most active membership in its history, the H.H.S. Chess Club helped to instill in today's generation the satisfaction of mental competition and sportsmanship provided by the ancient game of kings.

Student Librarians Sacrifice Study Hall Time

LIBRARY

Stacks of books, periodicals, reference materials, microfilm—these terms represent the many duties of the Library Club. During study halls and before and after school, members shelved and checked out books, worked with audio-visual equipment, and aided students with research. They met biweekly to discuss ways of improving the library and to work on the club scrapbook to be entered in a state contest. The organization also attended the Southwestern District Library Club Convention which was held in the fall at Chase High School in Forest City Charles Elledge, star of "Unto These Hills," discussed the importance of the interval the world today. From donning overalls for initiation to giving birthday parties for retarded children, the activities of the Sub-Junior Woman's Club contrasted social events with community service. Sponsored by the Junior Woman's Club, the organization helped collect contributions for the United and Heart Fund Drives. The girls donated toys, clothing, money, and time to the Western Carolina Center for retarded children. In October the girls staged a fashion show at the city auditorium sponsored by Sears & Roebuck Company. Proceeds from the show plus money earned at a bake sale financed a formal buffet and dance given at the Moose Lodge on December 28. Summer sunburns, freckles, and bleached hair faded as the beginning of school forced HHS, students inside Recovering from summer laziness, camp, jobs, beaches, or summer school, they faced the last week of August with dread, disbelief, and the excitement of starting back to school. Increased enrollment made pre-registration a nerve-racking task for teachers and new principal. For the first time, Hickory High became completely integrated Then the first of 180 days began with the ring of a bell and students no longer functioned separately, but as a whole—the student body of H.H.S.

MARIA PAI ADINI caps her hands around her mouth and stoops to shout a Tornado cheer in a "Latin-Southern" accent

Under the Al-S exchange program, Maria Paladini experienced the life of an American teen ager. Sol Zerden, that of a New Zealander. New subjects, friends, and habits highlighted the Argentine Maria's year-long stay, as she increasingly became "Americanized" with milk shakes and hamburgers. In the meantime, Sol, leaving behind his American luxuries, was initiated into New Zealand life. He experienced such "firsts" as milking cows, shearing sheep, and playing rugby and soccer Through the A.F.S. program both Maria and Sol became adopted citizens of two strikingly different countries

Susan Yost relinquished the familiar language and environment of Hickory to cross the Atlantic for a year in a girls' school, the "Lycée Classique." Once in Toulouse, Susan adjusted to strict study habits and little social life, typical program of a French "lycée". ## Fall Bonfires Spirit Team to 3A Championship

Splashes of color enlivened fall as breezes dispersed flurnes of scarlet, gold, and orange. Leaf-raking and quail hunting became popular "extracurricular activities" for erasing week-day cobwebs. The smoky tang of burning leaves in late afternoon flamed into crackling bonfires on crisp nights, and the 1966 pigskin season was kicked off. Pep rallies, open houses, and, after an eight-year lapse, bonfires fired school spirit. A Thanksgiving vacation play-off with Statesville won the trophy for the Western 3-A Conference Championship

SCHOOL is dismissed and everyone is leaving, but a loner remains in the "Grove" and decides that it's weather time for chains Winter's bleakness was forgotten when basketball season bounced in. In early December students rushed from one building to another, inhaling the biting air. The longest week preceded the shortest two weeks—Christmas vacation. Caroling, icicles, and the Sub.-Jr. formal dinner-dance at the Moose Club escorted out the old year, and fire-crackers, inch-thick overcoats, and impossible resolutions brought in 1967. Snowflakes turned H.H.S. into mass hysteria on a five-minute school day. Students hoped to be snowed-in to catch up on sleep and to study

Hectic Study Prefaces Semester's Torture

Late dates with books, two o'clock curfews, and home-work hangovers prepared students for two-and-a-half hours of torture per course as semester exams gripped H H.S. Last minute cramming and interpreting forgotten notes were attempts at concentrated study. Phone calls intended to clear up questions somehow degenerated into asking for dates or scooping gossip. Partial compensation for mid-term exams was open lunch, one-and-a-half hours to do everything or nothing. Wrinkled foreheads and baggy eyes were replaced by post-exam relief and apprehension as students awaited grading of the tests.

Postscript to winter, preface to summer—spring. Winter melted into this romantic, "fever" season. Familiar sounds filled the air—roar of freshly dusted hondas, swish of tennis rackets, splash of dubbed golf balls, crack of bats, crunch of spikes on cinder tracks. Spring was a time for Daisy Maes and Twirp Dance, for Cinderellas and Jr.-Sr. Easter vacation gave way to anxieties as end-of-year semesters approached, as juniors anticipated college boards, as seniors longed for graduation. Students' minds wandered to beaches and the long, hot summer days.

On-the-spot selection of the H.H.S. queen proved a popular change in the 1966 Quili and Scroll Beauty Contest. Emcee, Alan Clark, reduced tension of contestants and audience with his rollicking banter. SOPHOMORE VICE-PRESIDENT Lee Brown inspects new school tables, chaus, shelves, and laboratory facilities for the biology department

Looking lost and often being just that, sophomores entered high school life with apprehension and anticipation. Armed with books and schedule, the typical sophomore was caught up in the stream of students between classes. As dark, unknown buildings became familiar, confusion and turmoil turned to routine daily activity. By yelling at pep rathes, supporting the teams, working on staffs, and joining clubs, sophomores became active members of H.H.S. As this first year ended, sophomores reflected on their year of uniqueness and looked forward to losing underclassman status and accepting the responsibilities of becoming juniors

Stepping up to their place so recently vacated by the preceding class, juniors at Hickory High School added responsibility and more work balanced by greater prestige and privileges. The middle class and the stabilizing factor, the juniors settled down to hard work—new math. expository themes, and chemical equations. Throughout the year, standardized tests such as Merit and SCAT broke the tedium of daily work and paved the way to College Boards. As Junior Marshals were chosen and graduation drew near, the juniors looked ahead to their last year of high school with pride and anticipation as Hickory High School became truly theirs

INVOLVED IN MANY facets of school life, Vice-president Chris Lowder devotes a large amount of time to band and her French horn

WITH WARNINGS about the pitfalls of high school, Senior Class President Dean Bolick enthusiastically welcomes the sophomores to H H S

Having completed their last year at Hickory High, graduating seniors adorned themselves with new maroon and white caps and gowns. In addition to other senior privileges, they were allowed to leave class three minutes early for lunch. These privileges they took full advantage of throughout the year. As the challenges of past high school life became yesterday's experiences, the senior prepared himself for the adult world he would soon enter Each senior walked forward during the graduation ceremony, with thoughts of the last twelve years coupled with an image of the future—its triumphs, responsibilities

Advertising contracting national advertisers selling space to three hundred and thirty local patrons rushing to sell ads...laying-out the advertisements section... preparing full-color and duotone ads...taking pictures of students, customers, and employers...organizing a subscription drive for twelve hundred students professing the saying, "It pays to advertise"...making new acquaintances and gaining experience through business contacts...showing gratitude for merchants' loyalty and generosity...the LOG staff has supported Hickory, the "Best Balanced City in North Carolina" and thanks you, the people of Hickory, for the support you have given to make the 1967 HICKORY LOG a reality

THE LABELS IN HER VILLAGER COLLECTION SAY

WHAT DO YOUR VILLAGER LABELS SAY?

Yes, Virginia, unscrupulous people are trying to deceive you. They think that you, in your innocence and simplicity, are going to be taken in by clothes with names contrived to suggest The Villager, and designs cobbled hopefully together to look like the Real Thing.

Preposterous. You, with your first-class mind and sensitive appreciation, your instructive feeling for the vigorous stamp of original work? Nonsense.

Just the same, you will be careful, won't you?

You're the flippingest!

Today's young people are turned on and tuned in to what's happening. And things are happening because plentiful, low-priced electricity is making them happen. You flip the switches and turn the dials, and electricity does the rest. It makes life easier, happier, more comfortable and entertaining. And when you have a home of your own, electricity will work even harder to serve you. It's what's happening

Editor's word

> 1967 . . . a year of changes in academics, structure, concepts, and student activities . . . a breaking away from tradition. All of the facets of H.H.S. which together symbolize this year-victory bell, homecoming parade, modern math, bomb scare, Bermuda Day, burgundy caps and gowns, summer LOG delivery-we have attempted to capture in these pages in words and pictures. By the addition of a new section in the LOG, the faculty and staff members have been portrayed as individuals both at home and at Hickory High. One of the less obvious changes at H.H.S. has been the successful transition to a new administration. The members of the LOG staff would like to thank Mr. B. E. Miller for his enthusiastic support and help throughout this year From the Editorial to the Business Staff a special thanks for jumping in and helping us with our problems. A final thank you goes to our advisers, Mrs. Doris Sigmon and Mrs. June Summers-for just about everything
